A Ghastly Witness

A Lynched Man's Hand Indelibly Imprinted

On the Back of the Tree to Which It Was Nailed - Atroctites for Which All the Perpetrators Bave Suffered Retribution.

Denton, Md., telegram, May 3.

The correspondent of the Philadelphia Press telegraphs his paper the following Wilson for the murder of Ellen l'lummer. and the glastly reminder of the tragic event, which was one of the most atrocious ntheirs of which even a frenzied arob could be guilty, is described as actually existing in the shape of an indelible impression of the lynched ann's hand on the tree to which it was united. The correspondent says:

I drove out yesterday to a tree, four miles from the village, which still bears which was nailed there by one of the mob which langed, quartered, mutilated and burned him nearly twenty years ago, This singular freak of nature or sign manual of divine displeasure, as amny residents of the county esteem it, is generally treated with such contemptnous dishelief by strangers visiting Caroline County, that it is difficult now to find one who has seen it willing to talk about it, but an official of december, who did his full duty in an male ever to stay the tury of the moh, consented to show me to e remarkable tree. It is a giant swarop poplar, quite three test in diameter, standing close by the road which opens up Tuckahoe Neck, the gar-In spot of the country. About tweive feet from the ground, in the read face of the tree, is a seeming sene, which might current a casual glance on account of its marked difference in color from the other ark. Probably a stranger would not noby the singular traing of which it is the name, but to one looking for it the outline a a human hand, somewhat elongated by the growth of the tree, grows us one looks until it takes almost the very similitude of the withering hand which was nailed there two decades ago. Even the unit is still visible, as mogh the back has grown beyond so that it is half an inch below the surface. The trading of the hand appears in a much smoother as well as lighter-colrol burk-the palm through which the nail was driven being clearest in shape, with the thumb and spread index and little finger scarcely less perceptible. My guide said that the appearance grows more and more noticeable with each year, and it would be difficult to persuade him that it is due to other than providential design.

THE STORY OF THE CRIME.

The story of the crime, criminal and mob fury, of which he was the victim, is remarkable and worth recalling. Ellen Plummer, the twelve-year-old daughter of Edgar Plummer, did not return from school one Monday evening in the Fall of 1863. Her way home led past a dense wood, just entering which she was last seen alive. A searching party next morning found her corpse under a heavy log deep in the forest. It was evident that Jim Wilson, a bright mulatto of twenty-three years, who was known to have been in the woods about the hour the girl was last seen, was connected with her disuppearance. Wilson had been held in extraordinarily high esteem for politeness, industry and tidelity. He was the foreman and trusted protector of two maiden ladies who lived on a small farm in the neighborhood. No suspicion attached to him, when the persons investigating the erime questioned him, merely hoping that he might have observed something that would throw light upon the tragedy. When the subject was mentioned, the man turned pale, trembled violently and seemed on the verge of fainting. He could scarcely articulate his protests that he had not been near the wood and knew nothing of the erime. He protested too much, and suspicion fastened at once upon him as the murderer. He was arrested and, after a tirief examination, hurried off toward the county jail. On the road thither many wildly excited farmers joined in the procession, and even then lynching the prisoner was discussed. It was niged, however, that the proot of his guilt was not yet certniu. As a speedy way of obtaining this he was swung up by the thumbs to a tree limb, and after an hour's suspension, confessed that, prompted by the devil, he had done the deed. His contession ecoled, rather than increased the fury of the mob, who, listening to calmer counsels, carried him away to jail to answer in due form of law. Many persons even yet believe that the confession, although repeated afterward in the jail, was only the expression of a man too thoroughly terrified to know what he was saying. Each day after his lucurceration, a few young fellows, who were regarded almost with terror by law-abiging citizens, became more open in their threats that Wilson should not live to grace a legal gallows. Just at dark on the Saturday following the crime, twelve men, without masks or other concentment, and accompunied by, perhaps, fifty men and boys who took no part in the proceedings, attacked the jail. They made no formal demand for the prisoner, but Thomas Lockerman, with wedge, ax and sledge, broke the onter duor down in a very few minutes Wilson was in a cell on the upper floo-Between the beatings of the axes atsledges on the cell door the negro's voice could be heard in terrified prayers to Go and man for mercy. The mob found him on his knees, too overcome with fear to make resistance.

A MOR OF SAVAGES.

They had brought a rope fifty feet long, and one end of it trailed far out into the jail yard. The noosed cool was fastened around the victim's neek. He was carried, praying for mercy, not struggling, to the stair landing, and, at a signal, the rope tightened with the jerk of ten powerful arms and it is more than likely that Wilson was dead before his holy reached the foot of the stairs. Through the jail portal and yaul into the street, and thence through the court-house vard he was trailed at the rope's cud, his murderers yelling so like savages that timid citizens studdered behind the barred doors. A large sycamore tree stands at the foot of the court-house yard. The rope was ron over a convenient limb and the corpse swing of the ground. The the imprint of the hand of a negro, a mobile brought shorgans and pistols, and for a forest time amused themselves with ricellar, the body with bullets and small > shot. One load from a shotgun severed the rope and the body fall. The fury of the mob intensified. Another noese was closed around the neck and their victim was dragge I amother hundred yards to a tree in from of the negro church, where it was to he suspended as a warning to the race. The tree, however, was in full view of the mob's favorite saloon, the proprictor of which bribed them with tour guilous of whisky to forego this purpose and take it elsewhere.

A Palaware butcher, usined Greenwell, 'arrived about this time, and, at his suggestion, the most alrocious munifestations of the mob's malignity were emated.

The lody was taken to a valley in the outskirts of the village. Greenwell had brought with him the teals of his trace, and, to the accompaniments of frequent drinks, ribald songs and horrid imprecations, the butcher chopped up the body into small pieces, which were heaped in a funeral pile of brush and logs and burned. the orgies enacted around the blazing faggots would have been deemed disgraceful by suvages. One of the torenost of the mob was Geerge W. Vincent, who lived close by the poplar tree before mentioned, He had saved from the burning the two hands of the negro, and after the embers had died out proceeded homeward with his trophies. lars of capital washed. Of the $7,500,000 The notion of nailing the hand to the tree worth of hesiery unumaity imported note seems to have been a sudden impulse. He the Phit d States, $1,500,000 comes had carried a hatchet for use in breaking Germany, into the jail. It served to "skelp," as wondmen say, a place on the tree, in the middle of which he miled the hand. His wife receiving him in shrewish humor, he threw the other hand into her lap. She tossed the gruesome object into the fire, where it was burned.

Now follows one of the most singular features of the story, and one which many youths of Caroline county have learned as a pointed lesson of the certainty of retributive sufferers. First in the line of sufferers the wife of George W. Vincent suffered paralysis of her right arm next day. Vincent, himself, a few mouths afterwards, while cudeavoring to rob a negro near this village, was shot through the lungs and died of pneumonia, the physician said at the time, although he afterward admisted that the wound had eansed the pneumonia.

Greenwell, the Delaware butcher, was deserted by all his customers. " lle may butcher his meat with the same knife with which he earved Jlm Wilson," they said, and he sold no more meat in Caroline county. Taking to drink, he fell one day under a train at Seaford and lost his right arm. During another spree he fell into the creek at Senford, and, although help was near and the mun never sank below the surface, they took him out dead.

Marcy Fountain, unele of the outraged girl, a man who had made a fortune as a slave trader, saw his fortune disappear, and died almost in penury. James II. Barrick and Thomas Lockerman died in the agonies of delirium tremens. Every one known to be an actor in the lynching died in agony or penury excepting Jim Long, who lives yet, the object of the pity and seorn of all who know him.

Vehemently as good citizens denounced the atrocities, not one of the actors felt the baml of human justice. Grand juries were willing enough to indict, but wituessess could not be prevailed upon to tell what they knew.

It is worthy of remark, lest the imprint in the tree be attributed to some action of the decomposing unimal tissue, the lumbermen working in the vicinity made up a purse, and hired a man to take the hand down within a week of the time it was placed there.

THE Western Union Telegraph Company has been fined $5 and costs in Lexington, Ky., for non-payment of city licenso. The company's agent, in paying the tax demanded into court, gave as a reason for not dolng so before, his supposition that his company was exempt, the same as the Adams Express Company, but the judgo explained that the exemption of the express company is under a special statute.

More About the Attack on Minister

New York telegram, May 3.

The Times publishes a special from Berlin which undertakes to explain the misunderstanding or misrepresetation on the part of the North German Gazette in respect to the republication in a New York paper of Minister Sargent's report to Secrotary Frelinghuysen upon the pork question. The point of the special correspondent's explanation is, that what was published day before yesterday by the North German Gazetto was in reality a report of Sargent to the State Department. It was presented in order to show that the North German Gazette's late personal attack, which Mr. Sargent would have been justly entitled to consider a gross infringement of a newspaper upon his privileges as a foreign embassador, was based upon an lucorrect translation by the New York Handel Zeitung of Mr. Sargent's report. The North German Gazette, in reproducing the report, prefaces it by a paragraph, which the Times correspondent haracterizes as a weak and transparent attempt upon the part of the management to excuse their unwarrantable attack. This is the only excuse vouchsafed by the Berlin paper, and it is the general opinion here that while the apology is humble enough, it must be regarded nevertheless as entirely inadequate, since it convicts the North German Gazette of a gross misrepresentation of the ### Civil Service.

Washington telegram, May It.

Dorman B. Eaton, of the Civil Service Commission, said last evening that one of the clauses of the new Civil Service law provides that appointments shall be distributed among States and Territories in proportion to the population as far as practicable, but as this cause comes with several others under the coannon head of provisions, which are to be carried out only ns far us good administration law will permit, he did not think it would prove a source of much difficulty. He said further that it should be borno in mlnd that law had nothing to say with regard to the proposition in which several states and territories are represented in appointments already made, and that present representation of states and territories would not be taken into consideration in determining future appointments, as the law rofers solely to appointments hereafter to be made; also, that the provision of law referred to relates to appointments, not to examinations. Of course examinations would be made, he said, with a view to supplying the appointing power with propor material. The President will approve the regulations as soon as they shall have been altered to most the views of the Cabinet.

A CALL has been issued for a national convention of colored men to be held ut Washington, which bears the names of Frederick Douglass, Geroge W. Williams, author of the "History of the the Negro Race in America" and Proffessor R. T. Greener. It is intended to he "an organized expression of discontent with the political and social treatment of the colored people by their tellow citizens." The New York Sun in referring Baker and Confectioner to the matter says: It strikes us that the boldest policy and most promising line of action open at this time to the colored voters of the United States is to cut the thongs which have bound them so long to the wheels of the Republican party. The Republican party has flattered the negro and bamboozled him; it has wept over him and plundered him; it has claimed him as its own and swindled him without compunction; it has made use of him and flung him uside.

Negroes in several of the States are begining to find this out, and to act for themselves. If the Washington Convention is a representative body, sincere in its purpose and independent in its action, if can do a great deal for the race.

The report of the Board of Equalization was received, and is as foilows:

MAYSVILLE, KY., May 3, 1883. To the Honorable City Council: As members of the Equalization Board, we feel it our fluty to make a report of our work. In the first place the book sof the assessor, Thoù. Wood, were in perfect order. On an examination of the assessments, we found about one-third of the property is usually given in, that is at about two-thirds of its real value. The rest we thought entirely too low, and on the score of equity to equalize, we thought it right and hest, and our duty under our oalls to raise what scened too low to the same value as the property that we considered given in about right, (besides in view of the indebt choses of the city, now over $100,000) by laxation, we deem it of the highest importance that taxes should be properly adjusted and we would further state that the rate of taxation now, To the Honorable City Council: As members while one cent on the dollar on the assessed value, is only about two-thirds of a cent on real value of property.

The addition we made to the assessments

$200,000, which will increase the revenue of the city $2,000. We have discharged our duty the city $2,000. We have discharged our duty to the best of our ability, in some instances we may have gone too ldgh, in others too low, it is human to err.

We think you for the unsolicited honor conferred on us in our appointment. But the amount you may gilow us for our work will fully pay us for the misrepresentation uniturities abuse of certain parties, however, we feel assured that we will have the approval of nil good citizens in having dared to do what we thought right without fear or favor. We take pleasure in acknowledging our indebtedness to your gental ciers, ilarry Taydebtedness to your gental ciers, Harry Taylor, tor his assistance, by which our labors were great facilibated.

Respectfully submitted,

LABOR MOVEMENTS.

Strike Among the Coal Miners. Complete reports from railroad coal districts in the vicinity of Pittsburg in which a strike was inaugurated yesterday state that all the miners have joined the strike against a reduction save those employed a-W. P. Rend & Co.'s Cherry Hill Coal Company. A delegation of strikers headed by martial bands will surround these pits this afternoon and remain until the men at work join the strike. The operators are preparing to have strikers kept off their property, but no violence is anticipated. There is no change in the status of the cigar makers' and plasterers' strikes.

The coal miners of Belleville (Ill.) distriet struck yesterdny for higher wages. They claim they have only been getting one-half to two cents a bushel for digging and now demand two and a half cents. The operators refused to comply, but two said they probably would accede to the miners' demands. It is understood that similar action will be taken in all mining districts of the State. Diligent inquiry fails to reveal any movement among St. Louis eigar-makers looking to a strike. A few manufacturers are paying a slight advance, but the great bulk of the men are working at the old schedule. The nnion stone entters and plasterers went on a strike to-day. They presented a demand on the bosses yesterday for an increase from $3.50 to $1 a day, and the estublishment of a uniform rate. The employers refused to accede, and this morning about 500 stone cutters and 600 plasterers quit work. The bricklayers will to-morrow demand an increase of a half dollar a duy, which the bosses will not accede to, and they will probably strike. There are rumors of the usual spring strikes in various

The eigar-makers of Buffalo, N. Y., were granted an advance of a $1 and $1.50 per thousand, except by manufacturers George Sonneman and J. Meyers. Their bands, 240, left.

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

MESSUS, J. C. AVER & Co., Gentlemen:
Last whiter I was trouded with a most unconfortable itching humor nifecting more especially my fluibs, which Itched so intolerably at right, and burned so latensely, that I could scarcely bear uny clothing over them. I was also u sufferer from a severe estarri, and catarrimi cough; my from a severe entarth and catarrial cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AVER'S SABSAPABILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose, Alter a short time the fever and itsing were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My entarth and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly harroyed. entarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly huproved, until it is now excellent. I feel a humbred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARLLLA, which I recommend with all confidence us the lest blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles, I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

Yours respectfully. Z. P. Wilds."

Yours respectfully, The above lustance is lint one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of Aver's Sarsaparilla to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.
